Fred Burke, St. Louis Gangster Who Possessed Stolen on Securities, Sought for Many Crimes.

WOMAN DENIES SHE IS FORMER CONVICT

Slayer's Companion, Held at St. Joseph, Mich., Tells Prosecutor She Ran Beauty Parlor.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 17.—A nation-wide search today had failed to bring about the capture of Frederick Burke, alias Frederick Dane, former St. Louis (Mo.) gangster, who Saturday night shot and fatally wounded Patrolman Charles Shelly of St. Joseph, who sought to arrest him after a traffic accident.

Burke is alleged to have had a part in the holdup Nov. 7, of the Farmers' and Merchants' Bank at Jefferson, Wis., in which $252,000 in securities were stolen. The St. Valentine's day murder at Chicago last February in which seven gangsters were lined up against a garage wall and mowed down with machine gun fire, and numerous other crimes in Middle Western cities.

Meanwhile Viola Dane, 37 year old, the woman who posed here as his wife, is being held on a charge of receiving stolen goods.

A raid on the luxury home on Lake Shore Drive here, in which Burke and the woman had lived for several months, resulted in the recovery of $119,550 worth of securities stolen from the Jefferson (Wis.) bank and the discovery of machine guns and a large supply of ammunition.

"Woman Not Forcibly Convict."

Prosecutor Cunningham announced he was convinced the woman is not Maffie Howard, as was first thought, and has no previous prison record.

According to the woman's statement, which Cunningham said he believed, her real name is Mrs. Viola Brennenman, Kankakee, Ill. She said her maiden name was Viola Stevens, and that she had been born in Kankakee in 1912 or 1913. She told the Prosecutor she obtained a divorce "about two years" after her marriage and that she had a 15-year-old daughter.

Confronted with a telegram received by Chief of Police Fred Allen purporting to be from the police of Des Moines, Ia., and saying she was known there as Maffie Howard, with a Missouri prison record of 13 years, the woman, according to Cunningham, flatly denied that she ever had been in prison.

Cunningham said she told him she had met Burke through an acquaintance, Gladys Davidson, with whom she was associated in the operation of a beauty parlor at Hammond, Ind. She did not give the date of the meeting, but said it was while she was on a trip to Chicago with Miss Davidson that the latter telephoned her she had a friend she wanted her to meet. The meeting was arranged, she said, and a series of week-end meetings followed until she went to live with Burke. She said her mother still resided at Kankakee, but that her father had been dead several years.

Interviewed Her in Jail.

Prosecutor Cunningham said he story he told him in an interview with the woman at St. Joseph County jail last night, "Viola, I admit the possibility of error," said. "I have taken steps which I think will soon settle this thing definitely." He added, however, he was convinced "she was telling the truth" so far as her identity is concerned.

Police concluded Burke and his gangsters had used the residence in the fashionable Lake Shore district as a headquarters as well as a screen from which they operated in five states—Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Michigan.

He had been careful to exhibit a respectable home here, explaining to residents of this small city that he was owner of a string of gasoline stations in Indiana. He boasted of his wealth and his luxurious home and was accepted by acquaintances here as a prosperous business man.

cial, as I immediately ran to Challe's aid, and was overjoyed to find that he had only suffered a slight cut over his right eye. Both of us quickly recovered, and immediately set about the task of finding where we were and reaching civilization.

"The plane, I fear, is totally destroyed. We made no attempt to repair it but set out in different directions looking for signs of habitation, but keeping within easy call of each other.

"We were finally found in the early morning hours and reached San Antonio, where everyone had done everything in the world for us.

"The flyers are expected to proceed to Natal today, where an enthusiastic reception awaits them.

"Burke is wanted for so many things that rewards for his capture now total $16,000.

Peculiar markings on shells fired from one of the machine guns in the bungalow of Burke, were found today to be similar to markings on shells found in the North Clark street garage after the killing of the gangster.

Viola Dane was identified today by means of pictures as Mrs. John Brennenman, formerly of Kankakee, Ill. Relatives and friends of the woman said there was no doubt that she was the girl who on Nov. 7, 1914, married Brennenman, then a brakeman on the Illinois Central Railroad. She then said she was Viola Ostrowski, daughter of Peter and Victoria Ostrowski.

Records showed that Mrs. Brennenman obtained a divorce March 8, 1917, on a charge of desertion. She obtained the custody of her daughter, Wanita. Her father died several years ago, but her mother still lives in Kankakee.

Mrs. C. C. Woodworth Sues to Divorce New York Clubman.

By the Associated Press.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Dec. 17.—Suit for divorce, alleging extreme cruelty, was filed in Circuit Court here today by Linda Vida Woodworth against Chauncy Clark Woodworth, New York clubman.

Mrs. Woodworth, who before her marriage was Miss Linda Vida Horning of New York, alleged that her husband often struck and kicked her without provocation and had, on numerous occasions, cursed and abused her in public. Several times, Mrs. Woodworth charged, he took her to social affairs and left her without a proper escort home.

The Woodworths have been coming to Florida for several winters.

"Perfectly fair! Those men believe they are in an honest business, and so do I."

Barnes said the farmers, through co-operatives, already controlled 40 per cent of the wheat crop. He believed that co-operative marketing should be built up along the lines of the Canadian wheat pool, not with Government money, but with loans from private banks.

"Then what could the Farm Board do with the money that has been entrusted to it if it doesn't raise its interest?" asked Nye. Barnes replied that it could engage in stabilization operations, in times of emergency, without giving preference to co-operatives.

Senator Robinson was unable to see how it would ever be possible to build up the co-operative movement unless it was given some economic advantage.

"It is a complex question," said Barnes. "We are feeling our way in a new field." He again cited the example of the Canadian wheat pool, declaring that the Farm Board could build on the foundation of the existing co-operatives without compelling farmers to enter into the movement against their wills. He believed that loyalty to the movement could be induced without giving it an "unfair" economic advantage.

POLA NEGRINI AND HUSBAND MAKE UP ON FRIDAY THE 13TH

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Dec. 17.—Pola Negri, motion picture actress, has decided Friday, the thirteenth, is her lucky day. "We were separated eight months, but we never stopped in our hearts," she said today regarding her reconciliation with her husband, Prince Serge Mikhaylov of Russia.

"We couldn't get along without one another until we met in a divorce reconciliation court Friday, the thirteenth. I am not superstitious, but it was a lucky day for both of us."

The Prince interrupted: "The Judge asked me, 'Do you really love her?'" I answered 'Yes'."

Pola added: "I answered exactly the same."

After eight months' separation my husband decided to let me follow my career. I do about two pictures a year and will devote the rest of my time to my family life. We are going to celebrate our second honeymoon at St. Moritz and live happily ever after."

MARRIES RIDING INSTRUCTOR

Miss Elizabeth Merrill of Chicago is wed to W. C. Booth.

CHICAGO, Dec. 17.—Miss Elizabeth Merrill and William C. Booth, who instructed her in riding, have been married since Thanksgiving. It was learned to-day.

Miss Merrill, member of the Junior League, horsewoman and reportedly wealthy, is 22 years old. Booth, a former instructor at the Evanston Saddle Club, gave his name and honeymoon at St. Moritz and live happily ever after."

DEFENSE DENIES TORTURE MURDER EVER OCCURRED

Surprising Statements Made at Trial at Mountain View, Ark., of Four of Five Men Indicted.

FIFTH MAN TO BE STATE WITNESS

Person Calling Himself Connie Franklin, Supposed Victim Is an Impostor, Prosecutor Tells Jury.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Ark., Dec. 17.—A jury to try four young men charged with murder in the strange case of Connie Franklin, who later was burned to death by a gang of night riders last spring, is alive and waiting to testify for the defense, was sworn in at 10:30 m. today, after 58 veniremen had been questioned.

A new aspect of the State's case came in when the young residents of St. James, a small community 14 miles southeast of here—Bill Penner, Herman Greenway, Joe White and Hubert Hester—was disclosed in the calling of witnesses by Prosecuting Attorney Hugh Williamson. Fourth in Williamson's list of witnesses was Alex Fults, the fifth defendant under indictment for murder in the Franklin case, who was not in the courtroom.

The Sheriff declared that he found a heap of ashes in the wood near St. James Community and removed from bones that appeared to have been those of a human being. Later investigation revealed that the ashes had been removed, he added.

Williams declined to explain Fults' connection with the prosecution. When the defense witnesses were sworn the four defendants stood and held up their right hands, in indication that they will take the stand in their own defense.

Fults, a thick, gray-haired man, who had been seated at a corner of the crowded press table, borrowed a penknife from a reporter and peeled an apple for his 4-year-old daughter, Ima, who was perched on his knee.

Courtroom Crowded.

More than 400 persons jammed into the small, bare-walled courtroom that occupies most of the second floor of the unpretentious yellow sandstone courthouse that stands on the courthouse square.

The last venireman to be accepted was Cornelius Fans, who blushed and stammered when Prosecutor Williamson asked him: "Aren't you the Fans who has that long bravery citation and six or seven medals for bravery?" Fans finally staled at his feet and muttered an admission that he was the war hero.

Shortly before 11 o'clock the 80 witnesses—only divided between men and women—had herded into two witness rooms and Prosecutor Williamson began his preliminary outline of the case to the jury.

Williamson said the State would prove that Connie Franklin was beaten to death on what was to have been her wedding night and she then burned.

Debts Then Was a Murder.

The prosecutor's brother, Ben Williamson, counsel for the defense, said the defense would show that Franklin walked home from the St. James community near here, and has returned nine months later to tell a jury he was not slain.

The prosecutor, in outlining his case to the jury, declared testimony would show that Franklin's sweetheart, Tiller Ruminer, saw him beaten to death with sticks and rocks and she was assaulted by two of the defendants. She was named the only eyewitness to the alleged murder.

On the following night, Sunday, March 1, the prosecutor said testimony would show that Reuben Harrell, a deaf mute, was strolling through the woods near the scene where the Ruminer girl says her lover was slain and saw Herman Greenway, one of the defendants, bearing a body toward a fire. At a spot in the vicinity, he said, Sheriff Sam Johnson later found bones which he had said had been identified as those of a human being.

In closing, he said the man posing as Connie Franklin would be proved an imposter.

Wondered Away, Defense Says.

Ben Williamson said it would be shown the defense that Franklin and some of the defendants became intoxicated on the night of March 9 as they were on their way to Mountain View to obtain a marriage license for Fans and Tiller Ruminer. They did not complete the trip. The next day, he said, Mrs. Ruminer told Franklin she wished to postpone the wedding until fall and thereupon he told her if she did not marry him at once she would never see him again.

A natural wanderer, Williamson said, he drifted away from St. James to be seen in this section no days until he was brought back 14 days ago from a farm at Humble, Ark. Williamson said his movements from the time he left St. James would be traced by witnesses.

Testimony began this afternoon with Sheriff Sam Johnson of Stone County as the first witness.

Johnson testified that he started for a 22-foot monument. He should have had a simple, low base, and put his money in the figure. That is poor distribution of cost.

"There is no relation between the base and the statue, either in size, scale or composition. The whole thing is a hodge-podge of unrelated detail. The figures of the man and the horse are so loose they're not even worth criticizing."

"No modeling." He shook his head as he walked about the triangular base of the statue. "No anatomy. No truth of action. No hand in that glove—no living man in that uniform. And it's half going one way and half the other."

"Look—the horse is coming from the east." Prof. Wuerpel certainly was not even worth criticizing.

WARRANTS ISSUED
AGAINST '53 PCT.
HUCKINS' AND SON

Authorities at Hancock, Wisc., Asked to Arrest Father—Son at Excelsior Springs, Mo.

NEW CLAIMS OF
$70,000 ARE FILED

High Finance of Cedar Rapids, Ia., Money Wizard Causes Clamor of Investors for Indictment.

By THOMAS DAWSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., Dec. 17.—Warrants charging obtaining property by false pretenses were sworn out this afternoon by Prosecuting Attorney Carl Hendrickson of Linn County against Elmer S. Huckins and his son, George Earl Huckins, Authorities in Excelsior Springs, Mo., where Earl Huckins is said to be in a sanitarium, and at Hancock, Wisc., home of the father, have been asked to make immediate arrests.

New claims aggregating $70,000 against Huckins, who is said to have borrowed $2,000,000 on promises to pay from $25 to $5 per cent dividends. His wife and his son, also are named as defendants in the suits.

George Huckins went to Excelsior Springs, Mo., when he left his home here either Saturday or Sunday, it was learned today. Huckins is said to be registered at Excelsior Springs under the name of G. E. Hodis.

The high finance practiced by Elmer S. Huckins, 50-year-old so-called money wizard who borrowed an estimated $1,000,000 on promises of fat dividends, is under scrutiny by Carl Hendrickson, Linn County Prosecuting Attorney.

Six disturbed investors were clamoring for the indictment of Huckins, his gray-haired wife, Amelia, and his son, Cedar Rapids baseball magnate, as charges of fraud and obtaining money under false pretenses. The "wizard" yesterday said he is bound for Chicago, where today in his $10,000 home he is being harbored at Hancock, Wisc., and has admitted to several investors that he is temporarily without funds.

Prosecution Difficult.

Assistant County Attorney G. K. Thompson, detailed to the Huckins investigation by Hendrickson, admitted, after conferences with investors, that criminal proceedings against the Huckinses would be necessarily complicated. The difficulties, he said, were similar to those encountered by the prosecutors of Ponzi.

Despite the allegations of investors that Huckins, his grandmother, wife, with her, and his son, are swindlers, Mr. and Mrs. George, sought investments for a valid cigar business, the notes issued to persons who put up money make no mention of any business whatever. They merely state that $1050 or $2100, or $10,000 was borrowed by Elmer S. Huckins and his wife Amelia, without collateral, and that Mr. and Mrs. Huckins were to pay either 26 per cent or 30 per cent interest on the money as long as they had the use of it.

Thompson today is studying the record of the Ponzi case to see this guide to the drafting of a criminal information. The difference between Ponzi and Huckins, according to Thompson, is a matter of solicitation.

The Italian was never taxed with soliciting business. People literally flung their money at him and pleaded with him to take it in cold blood.

"There seems to be ample evidence now," Thompson said. "Elmer Huckins had no established business. He had to struggle with his prospects and bring down their suspicions. 'Mr. Huckins' in this difficult activity was a tower of strength to him. His grandmother's appearance in investors have said, was as good as a satisfactory witness in case I believe that significant action will be taken within 48 hours."

More was learned of these facts in the afternoon, and, in some cases, to borrow money at lower rates of interest, in order to gather additional dividends of either 25 or 35 per cent.

One of these is "Bill" Sponer, manager of the Cedar Rapids baseball team and for years a close Accidentally Kills Brother, 12.

MARION, Ill., Dec. 17.—Kenneth Parish, 15 years old, accidentally killed his brother, Charles Parish, 12, when shooting at targets along a creek bank here last night. According to the testimony of the brother and others in the party, the younger boy without looking walked in front of the gun just as his brother fired.

ROBBER BINDS, GAGS WOMAN, STEALS $213

Shoe Merchant's Wife Frees Self and Calls Police After Thief Escapes.

Mrs. Leah Margolis was bound and gagged by a robber in her husband's shoe store, 7611 South Broadway, at 10:30 a. m. today. The robber took $113 from the cash register and some rhinestones buckles from the show window.

After the robber had departed, Mrs. Margolis freed herself and notified police.

Two young men who seized the purse of Miss Delia Cullinan as she was about to enter her home at 5864 Maple avenue last night, met determined resistance and finally were foiled when she employed her own tactics.

One of the men had just succeeded in breaking her grip on the purse when the door of her home was opened by another one inside. Miss Cullinan, who had been roughly handled, took advantage of the situation when his attention was diverted to the door, snatched her purse from his hand and ran into the house. Both men fled.

A Negro who said he was William Moore, 1011 Pendleton avenue, was captured by police as he crawled out a window of a filling station at 3290 Chouteau avenue at 11 o'clock last night, after taking $7. The admitted burglaries of filling stations at Jefferson, Lucas and LaSalle avenues, and at Twenty-second street and Lucas avenue last Sunday, police said.

The drug store of Solomon Cotron, 1254 North Leffingwell avenue, was held up by two Negroes who obtained $49 and leisurely walked away from the store.

A $1000 diamond ring and a watch valued at $35 were reported missing from her home yesterday by Mrs. Frances Schneider, 8445 Clemens avenue, after a young man had been permitted to go through the house when he explained that he had been sent to inspect radiators.

Oil Tank Explosion Kills Man. By the Associated Press.

DAVENPORT, Ia., Dec. 17.—Arthur R. Stewart was killed and George W. Kirby and James K. Mitchell were burned in an explosion and fire which destroyed four gasoline and oil supply tanks and the building in which they were housed at the Standard Oil Co. late yesterday. John H. Holles, clerk in the warehouse, who was in the supply building when the explosion occurred, was thrown through a window to the pavement.

1935 VOTES TO INCREASE THE PAY. $80,000 were recommended for NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—Salary increases themselves today by the members of the Board of Aldermen, and passed by the Board of Aldermen by a vote of 46 to 3. The recommendation was in the form of an emergency measure introduced in the Board of Aldermen by the Mayor providing for an increase of pay for himself from $25,000 to $40,000, for Comptroller Charles W. Berry from $22,000 to $25,000, for Aldermanic President Joseph V. McKee from $15,000 to $25,000, and $5000 increases for the five borough presidents, making their yearly salaries $2,000 each. The eight men constitute the Board of Aldermen.

MEXICO RETALIATES FOR
THREAT TO ARREST CALLES
Close Consulate at Laredo, Tex., in Mexico, against District Attorney's Stand.
By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 17.—The Mexican Government today struck back at Laredo, Texas, border city, the principal port of entry of American products into Mexico, and of American tourists into Mexico, it was expected here the action might serve to divert some traffic. Closing of the Consulate meant that merchandise entering Mexico through Laredo must be approved by the Consulate at some other point, possibly Corpus Christi, San Antonio or Houston. Similarly, tourists would have to seek entry cards at some other city. Valla, for many years Prosecutor in Laredo, named both Gen. Calles, former Mexican President, and the late Gen. Obregon in murder warrants charging complicity in the death in 1915 of two Mexican officers on the Texas side of the Rio Grande. He threatened that if Gen. Calles ever passed through Laredo, he would arrest him on the charge. Gen. Calles crossed into Mexico through Laredo last night only because he held a United States State Department certificate of diplomatic immunity.

PART TWO.

CITY WON'T GOBBLE COUNTY IN REED'S UNIFICATION PLAN

Local Powers to Be Undisturbed but Metropolitan Area Will Have Name and Rating of City.

MAYOR AND COUNCIL HEAR PROPOSALS

Luncheon Under Auspices of Two Chambers of Commerce—Committees
Soon to Be Announced.

It has become apparent that,
unless some unexpected development occurs, the plan of governmental unification for St. Louis and St. Louis County to be drafted by Prof. Thomas H. Reed will be for creation of a metropolitan or regional government as the central authority for the whole territory, with local powers retained for local functions by the present city of St. Louis and by municipalities in the county.

The political unit to be proposed will be a city-county—a greater municipality under the name and census rating of the city of St.
Louis, with county status also, and with whatever degree of local autonomy appears desirable. The plan is crystallizing, but will not be completed until it has passed through the machinery of the Council on Metropolitan Government, which was established today at a luncheon at the Missouri Athletic Association under the auspices of the city and county Chambers of Commerce.

Nearly all of the 300 members of the council, equally divided in representation of civic interests from city and county, were in attendance. It is to be the council's task to advise as to the extent of various phases of the governmental unification to determine facts and to ascertain public sentiment.

Mayor Miller, who advocated outright annexation of the county in the 1936 campaign, declared that it was recognized now that

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

Founded by JOSEPH PULITZER
December 12, 1833
Published by
The Pulitzer Publishing Company
10th and Locust and Other Streets

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATEFORM
I know that my publication will make no distinction in the way of principles, that it will always stand for uprightness and personal integrity, and that it will always fight for the rights of all parties, never failing to say fairly, always opposing privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always ready to defend the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be fearlessly independent, never be afraid to attack wrongs, whether by predatory piracy or predatory property.

JOSEPH PULITZER,
April 26, 1897.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Favor Regulation of Newspapers.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

SINCE a newspaper is a public institution partaking of the character of a public utility, the electorate should require the same kind of supervision required of any other public utility.

First. No newspaper should be allowed to earn more than 7 per cent on its invested capital.

Second. All news channels crossing state lines should be supervised by a Federal utilities commission.

Third. All newspapers should make public statements of earnings at least once a year and their books should be open to public perusal.

Fourth. State public utility commissions should be allowed to re-allocate Associated Press franchises in part of press service to the public on the part of the newspaper in case of exorbitant charges for advertising matter.

Fifth. Advertising and circulation rates should be fixed by a commission.

The real trouble with these suggestions is that no Associated Press newspaper would support such a program. They would cry "a shackled press" and "free speech." They would object mightily to making only 7 per cent on their invested capital. They would howl at any attempt to squeeze the water out of their circulation.

Finally a few more advanced newspapers, such as the Post-Dispatch, which has for years been warning against "franchise grabbers" and "monopolies" and has been protecting the public against exorbitant rates, would be willing to do something to right these matters in our own industry.

A statement from newspapers, which have been protecting the public from other industries, would be interesting if they applied their own rules of conduct to themselves.

How many papers that want to supervise everything from a bus ride to a glass of water would be willing to have themselves supervised? How many of these stalwart protectors of the public would agree to 7 per cent return on their invested capital—a return that they have only too often proclaimed to be fair. This would be a capital way of ascertaining their honesty in their campaigns for the public good. Would a newspaper ever undertake to see that this new public utility is properly supervised?

A SUBSCRIBER.

Mr. Ford and Other Employers.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

YOUR editorial, "Mr. Ford and Property," was a sample of enlightenment hardly needed today by the majority of employers. But the hope that any great number of them will heed the "handwriting on the wall" is very faint. Mr. Ford believes in general prosperity—live and let live—but the greater number of employers believe in no such thing. They believe in a top-sided prosperity, the prosperity of the few. They are greedy not only for wealth but they are obsessed with the idea of superiority. They like the idea of master and slave, they want to be top dog. Of course, everybody knows that this policy has been resoundingly encouraged and practiced with ever-increasing shamelessness since that great human being, Woodrow Wilson, went down fighting almost lone-handed for democracy.

Natural Bridge Road.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

DEPERRING to the condition of the Natural Bridge road, would say that it would be a good thing if you would take a picture of this road and print it in your paper. It would show what the county officials are doing to our main roads.

Natural Bridge road is the main highway from St. Louis to the air fields and also one of the main roads from the West, and if you lived around here and saw the many tourists who become mired in this impassable road and the name it must give to St. Louis all over the United States, you might be able in some way to overcome this intolerable position which exists in and around Carondelet.

The contractor has done three more good things when he could have worked, but still everything is not right. When the people get up in arms and demand from the County Court some relief they pass the buck to the engineer and when we go to the engineer he passes the buck to the County Court.

Something must be done and be done quick.

A. J. AJEX.

A Useful Congressman.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

YOUR editorial captioned, "Real Leadership" in which you deservedly commend the Chamber of Commerce for some of its recent accomplishments seems incomplete without mention of the name of the man who has rendered most valuable aid to the chamber in its fight for the establishment of a direct air mail route between St. Louis and New York, and who since this movement was launched has been tireless in his efforts to further it, and to whom is due no small measure of the credit for the favorable decision just reached by the Post-Office Department. I refer to that most useful and industrious Congressman, John J. Cochran.

THE LAST DITCH.

The franchise grabbers who are trying to exploit the St. Louis street railway system have not despaired of the Transportation Survey Commission. They are resorting to last ditch tactics to make it appear that without a franchise the street railway cannot raise money for improvements.

The commission has therefore appointed a committee to ascertain how the company can raise the $25,000,000 which Mr. Kelker says is needed for improvements, and the committee will in all likelihood report that except for a franchise it cannot be done. President Stanley Clarke of the company has given the cue for a repetition of this worn-out stratum. That is, he says he does not know where the company can get the money. Obviously, the commission's line is to say that the company must have a franchise or it cannot get the money.

This is an ignoble part for a public body which should be serving the public interest, but it is nothing new for the Transportation Survey Commission. That body has persistently worked for the franchise grabbers and ignored the public interest. It would long ago have set the city charter aside and handed the streets of the city over to perjury to J. K. Newman and his associates had not the public interest been defended outside the commission. It only abandoned its fight for a contract ordinance for the company when the contract ordinance was proposed as only another name for a franchise. It only gave up an effort to warn the old service-at-cost ordinance when the real purpose behind that effort was exposed.

What do the citizens of St. Louis think of such a betrayal of the people by a public body? The company represented to the State commission when it asked permission to turn a controlling interest in its stock over to a holding company that unless this could be done the property could not be financed. Why does not the Transportation Survey Commission remind the company of the fact? If it is interested in financing of the street railway company, which is no part of its public business, why does it not tell the company to go to the City Utilities Co. of Denver for the $25,000,000 which Mr. Kelker thinks is needed for improvements?

The commission has not investigated the Kelker recommendation. It does not know whether so much money as that is needed for improvement or not. It has not considered if it would be good business to put another $25,000,000 into the street railway system or what the fare would have to be to pay earnings upon such an increased investment. This declining business is already failing by a million dollars a year to meet the expectations of its owners. How much farther would it fall in that respect if $25,000,000 were added to the investment?

The Transportation Survey Commission knows only what it has always known—that the franchise grabbers are caught in their own net and cannot escape without the connivance of the city administration.

THE UNDIPLOMATIC LEGGE.

Chairman Legge of the Farm Board continue in character. It will be recalled that, when quizzed by a Senate Committee as to his qualification for the position, he frankly explained that he had not sought the place, had, indeed, accepted it with a reluctance and "you can't make me mad by sending me home." And now he informs the United States Chamber of Commerce, which is opposing the board's plan for marketing wheat, that "the men who actually buy and handle wheat will not suffer under the Farm Board program. The fellow who will suffer is the one who has only a shiny topped desk on which to handle his wheat transactions instead of elevators and other facilities."

That is not the language of diplomacy. It is dirt-farmer talk. It has a reassuring ring. Mr. Legge is apparently convinced that, if the distribution of the farmer's product is to be done economically, superfluous stations must be gotten rid of. That is his plan, and he is determined to put it into operation as quickly as possible. Mr. Hoover seems to have picked the right man for chairman of the Farm Board.

Revised version: Do right and fear no man; don't write and fear no lobby investigating committee.

STARVATION IN PORTO RICO.

The Red Cross has appropriated $35,000 as a partial relief to Gov. Theodore Roosevelt's report on the deplorable conditions in Porto Rico. Starvation diets prevail among hundreds of thousands, he said after a tour of the island, 60 per cent of the children suffer from malnutrition and many are actually starving. The infant death rate is high, housing is inadequate, unemployment widespread and there is great need of medicines and food supplies.

Porto Rico is an overpopulated country, with 41 persons to the square mile. Conditions were bad enough before the hurricane of 15 months ago. The storm left ravages which could not be repaired by the $3,000,000 relief fund, and will endure for many years. With a wage level of 80 cents a day, and little work even at that rate, many may be expected to follow. And the children, Gov. Roosevelt points out, have suffered most. Local efforts to bring about relief have been inadequate, so he appeals to the outside world.

This should be a matter of concern to the American people and to Congress. These American citizens of the Caribbean should have the same opportunities as Americans of the mainland. Relieving them is not a matter for benevolent societies, but properly for Congress.

The first Battle of Camp Jackson passed without bloodshed, but what about the second?

A RIVERFRONT AIRPORT FOR ST. LOUIS.

A new municipal airport north of Bissell's Point has been adopted as one of the chief objectives of the Chamber of Commerce Air Board. This new airport, plans for which have been drawn up by the City Plan Commission, would be on reclaimed land, formed by straightening the Mississippi channel between Chair of Rocks and Bissell's Point. Such a landing field, available both for sea and land planes, could be reached within a very few minutes over existing roads, either from the heart of the downtown section or the heart of the residential section.

There is only one obstacle to the realization of this dream and that is its expense. Other cities—Chicago notably—would consider that no obstacle. Chicago's imagination would be fired by the immense advantages of such an air field, its convenience, its value to the city. St. Louis' boiling point is much higher.

But we think even St. Louis' caution and conservatism as it is, will not hesitate long in getting into effect the City Plan Commission's project. It includes, besides the air field, a park and a river front drive.

WHY MUSCLE SHOALS IS IMPORTANT.

Now that Mr. Hoover has decided in favor of leasing Muscle Shoals in the same way that Secretary Wilbur has proposed leasing Boulder Dam, the infatigable Senator Norris must assume once more the great task of explaining to Congress why the Government should operate Muscle Shoals.

One of the convincing features of that argument was the broader reason for Government operation as a measuring stick in the power field. The private companies, through the holding company device, have approached a national monopoly. Power has long been a local monopoly. Theoretically, the operating companies are regulated by commissions, since it would be unjust and unsafe to allow them to exercise monopoly rights over such a basic necessity. But regulation has for the most part broken down, and Mr. Hoover himself admits that it can never be effective without a national power body exercising control over interstate distribution of power as well as interstate finance. Senator Norris has therefore contended that the public should own and operate a few major producing systems to act as a competitive check to private monopoly, and it is in fear of this competition that the power interests have resisted Government operation at Muscle Shoals and Boulder Dam, as well as on the St. Lawrence and Columbia rivers. They are frankly afraid, not that Government operation would be inefficient, but that it would show the public how cheaply power could be obtained were it not for profiteering. Such a company inside the country would be infinitely more hurtful to monopoly than the comparison already made between the cost of power here and in Ontario, where the Government furnishes power from the Niagara River.

It is not merely that operation of Muscle Shoals is such as Senator Norris wants would show what power costs; we already know what power costs. Senator Norris wants to show what can profitably be sold for. Costs have figured hardly at all in the processes by which the rates now charged have been determined.

As Morris Llewellyn Cooke said in his survey of this subject: "The guiding principle followed in the fixing of rates is to charge what the traffic will bear. Rates as a whole have from time to time been brought down, usually as a result of comparisons made by public service commissions between revenues and costs as a whole, but little attempt has been made to work out a proper equilibrium between revenue and expense for any one class of service. Especially is this true of the charges and costs affecting domestic service. In the absence of any rational method of determining rates the tendency has been to charge large users competitive prices and small consumers monopolistic prices."

Already one of the biggest industries of our time, power, is in its infancy. Nothing could be more important than that in the development of this industry, which so intimately affects all the people, a proper balance should be struck between costs and rates.

Senator Norris does not want to deny the industry reasonable profit; what he has in mind is keeping the power industry from picking the pockets of the people, a practice it has fully confessed by its efforts to keep the Government from setting up Muscle Shoals as a measuring stick.

UNREVEALED BLUE LAWS.

The Sheriff of Lincoln County, Mo., and his deputies continue to arrest Sunday rabbit hunters, and who unto him who violates this old blue law do that part of the State.

This illustrates the danger of letting such laws go unrepealed. New Jersey has recently had a similar revival in which hundreds of persons were arrested for selling gasoline on Sunday. Almost every state in the Union has these old laws imbedded in its statutes, and they serve as dangerous weapons in the hands of overzealous officials.

The country needs to cleanse the law of such anachronisms. Since it is no longer possible in Iowa to drive on Sunday as slow as a horse walks, and since to forbid Sunday hunting in Missouri deprives most of the working people of any chance to have at all, these old statutory fossils ought to be repealed. That would be the honorable thing to do.

MUNICIPAL ART CRITICISM.

Criticism of the Camp Jackson Memorial, which Director Warper of the Washington University School of Fine Arts thinks should be removed from the triangle at Grand boulevard and Pine street, reminds the community that there is no municipal body which presumes to say if such works are good enough to be exhibited in the streets or parks.

Years ago a Municipal Art Commission was created, but it served only in an advisory capacity to city officials. It was removed by the municipality, and so disappeared. The controversy over the Camp Jackson Memorial should revive interest in such a body. The municipality ought not to leave public monuments to persons who do not know anything about their artistic merit, and whether the Camp Jackson Memorial is or is not what its critics claim, there was no proper criticism of it when it was done.

There are some very bad public monuments in St. Louis. They earned for us the strictures of Henry Adams, who thought that only barbarians would exhibit such monstrosities as some of them are. The City Plan Commission, which is supposed to exercise an aesthetic influence over the physical community, ought to have associated with it a Municipal Art Commission.

NEWS REEL.

Russia grants concession for razor blade factory, and Trotsky, exiled in Turkey, raises a beard; robbers, finding Chicago man has only 15 cents, give him $5, and holdup man shot Philadelphia because his pockets contained a mere $2; Dictator Primo de Rivera again postpones his resignation, and King Alfonso says he has always longed to be an auto mechanic; Moses and Grundy criticize the West, and California mountain is found to have lost six feet in height; Belleville congregation builds church in a day, and restoration of St. Paul's Cathedral, London, is completed after 15 years' work; World Almanac estimates there are 120,000,000 rats in the United States, and Hollywood producers pay $2 each for rodents to add realism in war pictures; plans for 1100-foot building announced in New York, and Albion (Ill.) farmer puts up three-story house.

But we think even St. Louis' caution and conservatism as it is, will not hesitate long in getting into effect the City Plan Commission's project. It includes, besides the air field, a park and a river front drive.

Of Making Many Books

JOHN G. NEIHARDT

A GALLERY OF WOMEN. By Theodore Dreiser. (Liveright.)

For four years the admirers of Theodore Dreiser have awaited a further demonstration of his talent. In these years the great realist has put forth an inconstant book about Soviet Russia, a volume or two of even less consequential poetry and drama, and now offers in two volumes, "A Gallery of Women."

Mr. Dreiser's intense interest in the feminine sex is no secret to his army of readers, for, with a lack of reverence often overstepping the restrictions of taste, he has presented a fairly complete catalogue of the women who have crossed his path. Occasionally his zeal for crowding everything into the record has led to repetition, as in the case of a certain pathetic letter in both "The Genius" and "A Book About Myself."

In his latest book, Mr. Dreiser discusses 15 women who have come under his observation; he has a wide variety of types: artist, writer, Greenwich Village straggler, a movie star, a scrubwoman, a morphine addict. Many of these women are beautiful, most of them discontented. Their problems arise from the vagaries of romantic emotion and into their several life histories the author insinuates his own concept of the inherent futility of human relationships. Several of the portraits are mere sketches, though others visualize a whole life span, the author in his role of detached observer interpreting each character with gentle understanding and tolerant sympathy.

One of the author's conspicuous failings is again manifest; insistence to the point of dullness in the piling up of detail, vague psychological speculation, outmoded metaphysical musings. One wishes Mr. Dreiser would leave literary philandering to lesser craftsmen and confine his own efforts to the realistic novel. There still remains to be written the third volume of that interesting trilogy begun in "The Financier" and dramatically continued in "The Genius." A confirmation of "A Book About Myself" would satisfy a wide-spread curiosity. That book, it may be recalled, stopped just short of the writer's real adventures in book making. One would like to read of the genesis of "Sisters Carrie," of "Jennie Gerhardt," and "An American Tragedy." Dreiser's own story of his long struggle for recognition would far surpass in interest all his late experimentalism with new art forms.

J. E. ROBINSON.

MEDICAL LEADERS. By Samuel W. Lambert, M. D., and George M. Goodwin, M. D. (Bobbs-Merrill.)

Had the men treated in this book been military leaders no such volume would have been necessary. Every schoolboy would have known of their achievements, and their biographies would have been written many, many times by now. These men were fighters, too, not against other men, but against disease and suffering. Each of their victories brought a definite benefit that has come down to our generation.

SAYS ARTISTIC GENIUS OCCURS MOST OFTEN AMONG THE POOR

Sculptor Lorado Taft gives demonstration of His Work at Junior League Clubrooms.

Artistic genius is found most often among poor boys and girls and in the homes of immigrant families, Lorado Taft of Chicago, sculptor, said at a press demonstration of his art at the Junior League Clubrooms yesterday.

"Genius just happens," Taft observed. "It may happen in the best families—but seldom does." The creative spirit in America, he said, had withered.

The sculptor, who stressed the importance of cultivating a popular appreciation of art in a lecture at the City Art Museum two weeks ago, displayed casts, clay and modeling tools.

A sculptor must understand anatomy and muscular action, Taft explained as he quickly carved and obliterated lines, completely changing the expression of the countenance he was modeling. He modeled also the head of his assistant, holding the model in different positions to illustrate how various angles and light effects may affect the appearance of a cast.

CHARLES L. LAWRENCE DINNER

Industrial Club to Honor Plane Engine Designer.

Charles L. Lawrence, vice president of the Curtis-Wright Corporation and designer of the Wright Whirlwind engine used in the "Spirit of St. Louis" and other trans-Atlantic planes, will be guest of honor at the annual dinner of the Industrial Club at the Coronado Hotel tomorrow night.

WHEELER of Montana and Hefflin locked horns in a brief but bitter struggle. Hefflin had just finished his play boys' and girls' tomato club, taken his seat, and immediately cried "Vote." Wheeler objected to the Alabama Senator's tactics.

"If the Senator will pardon me," said Hefflin in his smoothest voice, couched with reason, "I know that any Senator who has not eaten any of these tomatoes from Ireland would not say anything that would contribute very generally to the debate."

The remark angered Wheeler. Quick as flash he retorted: "Of course, there's no one in the Senate who contributes anything to any debate except the Senator from Alabama. We all concede that. He has probably contributed more than any other man on the floor of the Senate—at least in words."

Laughter came from the floor. For there no Senator who does not know that this Hefflin's greatest weakness.

TO GIVE DANCE

—Athenaeum Photo.
MRS. LOUIS L. MUCKERMAN.

W. HO will give a costume dance Christmas night at Glen Echo Country Club. Mr. and Mrs. Muckerman reside at 7316 Fernside avenue.

The annual Christmas party of the Business and Professional Women's Club will be held this evening in connection with the emblem dinner at the Town Club.

Miss Inez Marie Webb, emblem chairman, will preside. Miss Elizabeth Kester Turk and Mrs. Vera Davies are in charge of decorations. Miss Grace Kline, Miss Marie Krag, Miss Marie Regnier, Miss Florence Weigle, Miss Nellie Qualey, Miss Anna Koch, Miss Emily Van Beckendorf, Mrs. Frederick B. Clark, Miss Lettie Tischner and Miss Ada Snodgrass with Miss Byrd Yore as chairman, form the Hospital Committee. Miss Geraldine Boe, daughter of Mrs. Kathleen Boe, a member of the club, and Miss Ardeth Hogan, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Granville Hogan, are in charge of the entertainment. Miss Grace Leggo Houlder of Australia will talk on "The Significance of Emblems."

Progress has been made in the fields dominated by these men, but many problems remain and the fight goes on unceasingly. To illustrate the record of our own day, pertinent statistics for the United States are given near the close of the volume. The average expectation of life in 1901 was 49.2 years, the Bureau of Public Health reports, and in 1931 it was 54.9 years. In 1900, 1755 persons out of every 100,000 died, and in 1931 the death rate was 1163.3 in 100,000, a decrease of 34 per cent.

FERD GOTTLIEB.

ORGANIZATION, MANAGEMENT AND TECHNOLOGY IN THE MANUFACTURE OF MEN'S CLOTHING. By Martin E. Popkin. (Cassell Pitman & Sons.)

The complete technique of men's clothing manufacture is embodied in this thorough and competent volume. There is a history of the industry's growth in this country. Most of the book is devoted to a complete study of making clothing, copiously illustrated with diagrams, charts and tables. The manufacture of clothing in this country now represents a capital investment of more than $560,000,000, and its output ranks nineteenth in total value of output, the writer states. His book should be an valuable work to executives and others in the industry.

STANLEY H. SICHER.

Mr. Walker Barriger Jr., of Montclair, N. J., will arrive shortly to spend the holidays with Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Vickers Beck, 6012 Clemens avenue.

Mr. Barriger's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Walker Barriger III of Montclair, and their young son and daughter, will arrive next week to be guests of Mr. Barriger's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hudson Thacher of Glenview, Ferguson. Mrs. Barriger before her marriage was Miss Elizabeth Chambers Thacher.

Mrs. D. B. Hussey, 4905 Argyle place, will depart tomorrow for New York to spend two months with her daughter, Mrs. James L. Bailey. Mrs. Hussey's son, Nolen Hussey, will depart next week for New York to spend the holidays with his mother and his sister.

The visit of Miss Hussey's granddaughter, Miss Mary Jane Hussey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hussey, who are spending the winter in the West, has been postponed. She was to have been the guest of former classmates of Mary Institute for the holidays.

Miss Marie Ball, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George L. Ball of West Orange, N. J., to William H. Vandamme of New York and Newark, N. J., whose engagement was announced yesterday, will take place on Dec. 27 at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Colby, West Orange. Only close relatives and a few intimate friends of the couple will attend.

Miss Elizabeth Upthegrove, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

MRS. HELEN VON WEISSE, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George von Weisse of Glenview, Ill., and Dr. Thomas C. McCleve Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. Thomas C. McCleve of Berwyn, Ill., were married at 11 o'clock yesterday at St. Peter's Episcopal Church, the Rev. Dr. Edward Scherff Traviss officiating. Arrangements were simple and the guests limited to relatives and friends because of mourning in the bride's family.

The bride is an alumna of National Park Seminary in Washington and served as maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball two years ago. She was the guest for part of that season of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Louis B. von Weisse, 5 Lenox place. She is a niece of Mrs. Leone Gale of Webster Groves and Charles von Weisse of Rockwood, Ill.

Mr. McCleve, a graduate of the University of California, took a post-graduate course at Washington University. He is now serving his internship at Barnes Hospital.

Mr. McCleve will take his bride to Berkeley on their wedding trip, following a breakfast at the Coronado Hotel. They will make their home in the Ellington apartments.

Miss Marion Clifford Blossom, 4511 West Pine boulevard, will have as her guest during the holidays her nephew, Henry Clifford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur M. Clifford of Pasadena, Cal., a student of Yale, who will arrive Friday.

Mr. Clifford's son, Bradford, a student at the California Institute of Technology, Pasadena, will arrive home Dec. 22, and a younger son, Howard, who attends the Deerfield Academy, Deerfield, Mass., will arrive Thursday for a holiday visit.

William Davis Gunter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Felix E. Gunter, 27 Pershing place, will return home Sunday from Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Va., to spend the holidays with his parents. He will bring as his guest, William Houlder of Australia, who will talk on "The Significance of Emblems."

The hundred children of the Lincoln School of the Normandy District will present a Christmas pageant founded on the "Legend of the Golden Cobwebs" at the Normandy High School auditorium, Friday evening at 8:15 o'clock. Mrs. Walter R. Proetz has charge of the pageant. Mrs. E. D. Begeman will direct the music.

LOWELL SHERMAN TO WED HELENE COSTELLO IN MARCH

Engagement of Pauline Garon's Ex-Husband and John Y. Regan's Divorced Wife Announced.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 17.—Helene Costello, daughter of Maurice Costello and sister of Mrs. John Barrymore, and Lowell Sherman, motion picture actor, will be married during the latter part of March and will spend a honeymoon abroad.

Announcement was made yesterday by Miss Costello. "It will be a very quiet affair, with only Mr. and Mrs. Barrymore and a few friends present," she said. "We do not plan a church wedding." Miss Costello is the former wife of John Y. Regan of New York. Her divorce became final a short time ago. Sherman is the former husband of Pauline Garon, actress.

Mrs. Samuel Bradley Gandy of Tonawanda, who for several weeks has been the guest of her mother, Mrs. John Sarpy, Bartholdi of the Union Hotel, departed yesterday for home. Mrs. Gandy before her marriage was Miss Mimi Berthold. During her visit in St. Louis she was entertained at a number of social affairs.

The St. Louis Safety Council will sponsor a Public Safety Conference dinner meeting at the Gatzow Hotel tonight at 6:30 o'clock. Speakers will tell of local safety work.

LAMBERT FIELD TO INSTALL

RADIO BEACON AS GUIDE IN FOG

Department of Commerce Adopts Similar Step at Kansas City and Omaha.

Installation of a radio beacon system at Lambert-St. Louis Field, Kansas City and Omaha to facilitate the movement of mail and passengers planes in foggy weather is to be started shortly by the Department of Commerce.

A site on the eastern edge of Lambert Field has been set aside for the beacon and construction will be started this month. Work on the stations at Kansas City and Omaha is also scheduled to begin before Jan. 1, and it is expected the system will be in operation within a month.

Radio signals broadcast from the beacons inform pilots of planes equipped with receiving sets when they are drifting to the right or left of the direct course.

Mrs. Nellie Jane Richardson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Richardson of Pelhamhurst, N. Y., will return Friday to the holidays with her parents. Miss Richardson, a graduate of Mary Institute, recently was elected president of her class.

Stanley H. Sicher, a student at the Harvard Law School, will spend the holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sicher of Hotel Chase.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—There are 15,000 Chinese living in the suburbs of Chinatown. New York, and there are 10,000 more in the Bronx. The laundry workers are the most numerous, and they work 24 hours a day. They are the backbone of the Chinese laundry business.

Mr. Lee Holt, pastor of St. John's M. E. Church, will arrive Friday to spend the holidays with his parents.

With few exceptions, they are opium addicts drifting through endless days and nights in poppy dreams. It was 2 hours, the postman Richard Le Galliano who, upon seeing two of them peeping through shattered windows, was reminded of "Iwo Jima" and glistening tears.

It is automatic that white wives of Chinese are well treated. The husband rarely deserts. They will leave him when he is unable to support them.

Young men walk no more than 100 feet to their laundry shop. Young men walk no more than 100 feet to their laundry shop. They call flag with chop as nice. Topochee, Cal.

Commission on Haiti Affairs OK'd. By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—The House Foreign Affairs Committee today approved the revised Porter resolution to authorize the President to appoint a commission of seven to investigate conditions in Haiti and report within six months. The original resolution, which was approved last Undersecretary of State Cotton, merely provided for a commission "to study and review the United States policies in Haiti." The measure approved today specified a commission of seven members to "study and review conditions in Haiti and the policies of the United States in that republic." It also would provide $50,000 for expenses of the commission.

Sky Harbor, Chicago, Bankrupt.

CHICAGO, Dec. 17.—Sky Harbor, an airport with holdings valued at $600,000, has entered into a voluntary equity bankruptcy. (See "Aerospace" page 20, esp. page 20, Dec. 12.) Walter Despilat, vice president and general manager since the resignation of President Paul Florian several weeks ago, said he had been unable to negotiate a necessary refinancing. The ground school in Chicago and the airport west of Glenco were closed yesterday.

Japan to insist

ON 80,000 TONS
OF SUBMARINES

Japan, but the abolition of capital ships, which has been agitated ever since the airplane became an important weapon of war, was represented as a pleasing prospect. Japan, however, is a subject which the delegation does not plan to bring up at London. Another master of officials have no present intention of raising the British naval base at Singapore.

Reiji Wakatsuki, chief Japanese

on the London conference, issued a formal statement last night on the general attitude of his Government. The text follows:

"The Japanese delegation wish to thank the Government and people of the United States for the cordial welcome both official and private, extended to them ever since they landed at Seattle a few days ago, and are greatly impressed by the evidences of keen interest on the part of the American nation in the forthcoming naval conference in London.

"The whole Japanese nation are equally interested in the meeting and are eagerly and confidently anticipating that its noble objective will be attained in a just and effective manner.

"We are now very glad to be in Washington en route to London, and to have had the opportunity of paying our respects to the President of the United States, whose vision and initiative have been an important factor in the calling together of the London Gathering.

Start With Kellogg Pact.

"The forthcoming meeting makes the Kellogg pact its starting point. Under that pact, the signatory Powers are pledged to renounce war as an instrument of national policy and to settle all international disputes only by pacific means. To meet under such auspices is in itself a guarantee of success, for policies of disarmament are the natural consequences of the renunciation of war.

"Furthermore, it is expected that the participating Powers are coming to the conference altogether with an open mind, reposing each in the other full faith and confidence in the justice and fairness of their respective international policies.

"There is, therefore, every reason for us to be sanguine as to the result of the London conference. The termination of competitive armaments and a positive reduction in naval strength may, we believe, be looked for as the outcome.

Japan for Reduction.

"Japan advocates reduction. She advocates scaling down the naval armaments of the participating Powers, and she herself stands ready to reduce her naval strength proportionately.

"It goes without saying that, in so doing, she has to bear in mind the necessity of keeping undisturbed the sense of national security of the people. From this consideration she feels entitled to retain a minimum strength, insufficient for attack and only adequate for defense in home waters. The proposals of Japan at the forthcoming conference are based upon this principle alone. She is prepared to accept a ratio that is less than parity with the other great Powers, and so gives clear proof of the entire absence of any thought of offensive operations.

"We are confident that an important program will be effected. London is the great task of disarmament and of guaranteeing an enduring peace."

U. S. Delegation of 67.

Shortly after the Japanese delegation to the London naval conference reached the Capital the American Government completed the list of those who will represent the United States at the parley and announced that 67 men and women would be sent to London.

The United States group is separated into nine sections: Delegation, advisers, naval technical staff, secretariat, assistant secretaries, stenographers, file clerks, code clerks and navy stenographic personnel.

SENATE CONFIRMS
ALBERT L. WATSON
AS FEDERAL JUDGE

qualified for the post, but that he was the best candidate available.

"God help the bar of that district if Watson is the best they have," Norris exclaimed.

After a colloquy between Norris and Borah as to what Mitchell had told the committee, Borah declared:

"So far as I am concerned the Attorney-General will have to make his position plain before this nomination can be confirmed. It was almost entirely on his recommendation that I decided to vote for confirmation."

Senator Barkley (Dem., Ky.) said he had heard it rumored that Secretary Mellon, Atterbury and Senator Reed had got together and decided to force President Hoover to appoint Watson. Reed denied this, saying he was sure Secretary Mellon knew nothing about it.

Reed of Pennsylvania had alluded to the fact that Watson was appointed to the Common Pleas Court of Scranton by former Gov. Pinchot. In that connection, Norris read to the Senate a telegram from Pinchot which said:

"Sorry I ever appointed Watson. Once on the bench he traded his principles for the support of the machine. Was defeated for re-election largely by disgruntled former friends. Am opposed to his confirmation."

"Little Railroad Litigation."

Reed declared that, regardless of the vast extent of the Pennsylvania Railroad properties in the district, it had little litigation in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in the circuit which includes the Boron district, had written a letter to President Hoover strenuously opposing the appointment of Watson, and pronouncing him unqualified for the office of district judge.

Reed declared that Watson had made an excellent record as judge of the Common Pleas Court, but admitted, in reply to questions from Norris and Walsh that of 11 cases decided by him and appealed to the State Supreme Court nine had been reversed. He also agreed that Watson was defeated for reelection.

It was brought out that Judge Joseph Buffington, senior judge of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in the circuit which includes the Boron district, had written a letter to President Hoover strenuously opposing the appointment of Watson, and pronouncing him unqualified for the office of district judge.

COUNTY TO RETAIN STATUS IN REED'S UNIFICATION PLAN

the way to solve the increasing number of mutual problems of city and county. "To secure an adjustment of the relationship between the city and county, is not by proposal to annex the county to the city." He advocated friendly cooperation instead.

Only One Equitable Method.

Prof. Reed, who is a widely known authority on municipal government, a consultant of the City and County Metropolitan Development Committee. He has not announced definitely a conclusion as to the plan. The Post-Dispatch has learned, however, that only one suitable method of merger has been found in the committee's canvass of the situation—that of the city-county. It is generally thought that the county will not tolerate outright annexation, at least not for many years, and Reed has been demonstrating that the city cannot afford this method. Attachment of only the suburban section of the county to the city has been rejected as unfair and unwise.

A problem in the planning is to combine feasibility with desirability, that is, to set up a metropolitan government for Greater St. Louis that will be acceptable to all the communities. This involves attachment of residents of most of the incorporated suburbs for their familiar local governments and to some extent pride in county independence.

St. Louis city likely would find some adjoining districts seeking annexation to it under the city-county plan, and this would be desirable. Reed has been considering possibilities of solidifying the incorporated county towns and some of the thickly settled arterials. It has been suggested that the Department of Commerce model ordinance be adopted with some modifications.

Planning and Zoning.—It is generally conceded that the whole territory should be uniformly zoned and planned for development, including co-ordination of traffic arteries. It has been suggested that the Department of Commerce model ordinance be adopted with some modifications.

Planning—Planning and administration of the construction, repair and maintenance of general highways. Local streets likely would be left to local government.

Firearm.—The county never districts their construction period, but a measure is needed for co-ordination, development and administration of the services of the whole region, and authorities foresee the ultimate necessity of power to handle sewage justification.

Parks and Recreation.—The extent of control and development of parks and playgrounds must be considered. Numerous details are involved.

Control of Utilities.

Public Utilities—Extent of control by the central and local governments of the electric, gas, heat, light and power utilities, apart from State regulation, must be determined; another question is whether the present city facilities should not be employed to furnish county, to fill the need for these installations there.

Education.—The first question is whether any action shall be made to centralize the schools, a question of jurisdiction; there are more than 10 independent county school districts. If centralization is not desirable, can some rural schools be consolidated or given aid, this committee will be asked, or should some county districts be attached to the city Board of Education?

Public Safety—Building regulations might be made general or localized under a general code, the extent of uniformity of police, fire and other measures to be determined and the function to improve fire protection and reduce county insurance rates considered.

Justice.—This committee will decide whether the two judicial circuits should be combined, with centers in St. Louis and Clayton, or kept separate; whether minor courts should be reorganized and what changes are needed in court offices, including registration of deeds.

Welfare—Centralization of charitable hospitals and public health work, is considered as one of the most obvious and necessary steps. Some interested persons have shown a disposition to have welfare administered by a board removed from politics.

Libraries—The principal question is whether the city tax rate of 4 cents on the $1.00 valuation for libraries shall be spread over the governmental function or considered should be divided in the metropolitan government. If all of the functions mentioned were assigned to the central authority, he added, "It would probably be going further than wisdom would justify or public opinion supports."

What the merger plan is proposed will be subject to adoption of a constitutional amendment and approval by local voters in the city and county.

UES FOR $1,000,000
OF FIANCÉ'S ESTATE

Evelyn Martin Files Action Against Former U. S. Senator Elkins.

Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch, NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—In order to retain more than $1,000,000 left by Stephen B. Elkins, Mrs. Evelyn L. Martin, engaged for more than a year to the wealthy sportsman whose family has numbered three members of the United States Senate, filed two suits yesterday.

against Davis Elkins, millionaire brother of Stephen.

The first litigation entered by Mrs. Martin to whom was bequeathed an income of $1000 a month for life by Stephen B. Elkins, was to name a temporary administrator appointed to supersede Davis Elkins, appointed executor, on the ground that he is misleading.

The second is a motion, granted by Surrogate O'Brien, to serve the heirs of the will by publication a citation requiring them to show why Stephen Elkins' will and the codicil attached, should not be probated. Davis Elkins as executor is concerned in both suits.

Davis Elkins, named to inherit the residue of his brother's estate, which is worth $1,000,000, has interfered with the probate of the will with intent to provoke a contest and deprive her of her rights according to Mrs. Martin. Elkins is a multi-millionaire and former

United States Senator from West Virginia.

Mrs. Martin through her attorney, Max D. Steuer, alleges that Elkins, already, seven weeks after his brother's death, has removed from Stephen's apartment here a large quantity of liquor which, with valuable portraits and the furnishings of the apartment, were willed to Mrs. Martin.

Washington, on the ground that his brother has made his home in the capital for the last 20 years.

Mrs. Martin countered with the statement that Stephen Elkins had engaged business in New York 22 years before his death and, therefore, the New York courts should have jurisdiction.

"Practically all of the substantial personal property left by the decedent is located in New York," her affidavit reads. "including large holdings in bonds and securities and other property in safe deposit boxes, besides bank accounts elsewhere in New York."

There also remains to be mentioned the property in the apartment here worth more than $500,000, which was bequeathed entirely to Mrs. Martin.

Elkins died of heart disease Oct. 20, as he was celebrating his fifty-second birthday. Although many times reported engaged, once succeeded in removing the will from the New York courts to torts action, he never married. The will he left created the trust fund for Mrs. Martin to provide for $1000 a month. A codicil, dated Oct. 16, 1929, gave her the Virginia property and the contents of his apartment.

$600,000,000 STEEL MERGER

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—The New York Times says that plans for the merger of independent steel companies of the Middle West, by which it is expected an organization with combined assets of more than $600,000,000 will be created, have reached an advanced stage and will be announced within a few days.

The merger, the Times says, is being sponsored by the Eaton-Otis-Mather financial interests, headed by Cyrus H. Eaton of Cleveland. Among the companies expected to be merged are the Republic Iron and Steel, the Toledo, the Midland and Tribe, the Old West, the Mid-Kinney Steel, the Central Alloy Steel and the Inland Steel.

HEFLIN REFUSES TO BE READ OUT OF PARTY

He Will Run Again, Though Alabama Democratic Committee Bars Him.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Announcing he would be a candidate for re-election in 1936 despite the decision of the Alabama Democratic Executive Committee to bar him from participation in the primary, Senator Heflin of Alabama said in a statement yesterday "the time for a housecleaning in the Democratic party in Alabama has certainly arrived."

Alabama State Executive Committee Bars Hoover Democrats.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Dec. 17.—The State Democratic Executive Committee yesterday barred United States Senator J. Thomas Heflin, a candidate to succeed himself, and Hugh A. Locke, Birmingham, a gubernatorial candidate, from the Alabama Democratic primary, and year barred of their return as supporters. Alfred M. Smith, Democratic presidential nominee, in last year's general election.

By a vote of 27 to 21, the committee decided to bar from the primary Aug. 12, 1936, all candidates for Federal, State, District or Circuit offices who supported President Hoover. County offices were not affected by the ruling, the voter being left to the discretion of county committees.

The resolution invited all voters who believe in the principles of the Democratic party to cast their votes in the August primary, the only requirement being that they support the party's nominees in the general election.

St. Louis must finish the Job

A New Law now helps
Us to combat Dirt, Dust
and Daytime Darkness

With your help St. Louis can remove them entirely

A strong, effective smoke ordinance is now on the books of the City Government. It is a law with teeth in it, enabling municipal officers to enforce the public demand that smoke be cleared from our skies. Adequate public funds have been provided to organize a corps of inspectors, large enough to cope with the nuisance.

Two years ago the battle against smoke was started by a small, but zealous group, with limited means and limited power. Working in conjunction with the City Smoke Department, a material improvement has been effected by instructing thousands of janitors and home-owners in proper firing methods and in reconstructing antiquated equipment in hundreds of heating plants. Accurate, scientific tests show that last winter there was from 46% to 60% less soot fall than there was when the Smoke Abatement Campaign began in March, 1927.

Smoke is measured in three ways: (1) Periodical weighing of dust and soot, collected in receptacles placed at strategic points; (2) observation of density of smoke, issuing from a large number of typical stacks and chimneys; counts of the particles of solid matter, suspended in samples of air collected at designated stations. Tests made by these methods show that we have reduced smoke to the amount indicated by the symbols above.

This is How You Can Abate the Smoke from Your Own Heating Plant

- 1 You can use smokeless fuel
The small additional cost will be more than offset by reduced cleaning bills and improved health conditions.
- 2 Use equipment that burns fuel smokelessly...
- 3 make minor changes in your heating plant

The Smoke Abatement League has developed a very inexpensive method of improving equipment, especially adaptable to the small heating plant. We urge you to call upon our experts for full details...of course, there is no charge for counsel. Office, 1605 Arcade Bldg., phone MAin 1253.

The task is now half done! Will St. Louis roll up its sleeves and tackle the rest of the job? Only through active and unrelenting effort can our City Government fulfill its obligation. Only by giving its fullest cooperation, can the citizenry expect results. It is obvious that if such strides were made before, increased funds and a mandatory law must bring far greater improvement in the future.

The Citizens' Smoke Abatement League is anxious to help the City Government execute its new trust and urges every St. Louisan to join this great and growing movement. Smoke has already been decreased in St. Louis; when it is entirely eliminated, we shall have a cleaner city, a more healthful city and a greater civic pride.

Abatement League of St. Louis

COOVER IS ELECTED CAPTAIN OF WASHINGTON ELEVEN FOR NEXT YEAR

18 MEMBERS OF 1929 FOOTBALL TEAM PRESENTED WITH LETTERS

Rose Bowl Is Sold Out for New Year's Football Contest

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 17.—The Rose Bowl, which seats 75,000 persons, was sold out for the New Year's football classic between the University of Southern California and the University of Pittsburgh.

The last of the tickets was disposed of yesterday. There has been no public sale of tickets, all having been mailed in response to applications.

The gate will approximate $300,000. Most of the seats were sold at $5 with a few at $8 and the remainder at $2.

By Henry L. Freuden

George Coover was elected captain of the 1929 Washington U. football team at the annual "W" banquet, held at Francia Gymnasium last night. Coover has played end on the Washington eleven for the past two seasons and is regarded by coaches as an outstanding wingman. Besides playing college football, Coover has been the regular center fielder on the baseball team for two seasons. Eighteen football players were awarded letters.

Coover is a product of Cleveland High School where he played for three years at halfback and end. Besides playing football at high school, Coover found time to play three years as a guard of the basketball team and three years of baseball.

In his senior year at high school, Coover was chosen as a member of the high school all-star team. He was also captain of the football team in his last year at high school.

Weighing 187 pounds and being six feet tall, Coover has an ideal build for an end. He is exceptionally fast and, along with Paris, has been the first one down the field under punts. Next year will be Coover's last at Washington. He will be senior in the School of Business Administration.

The banquet last night although featured by the election of Coover to the captaincy had its usual quota of speeches. Talks were made by the entire coaching staff, Chancellor Throop and Dan Bartlett, a prominent alumnus of the school.

Jablonsky, the retiring captain presented gifts to the entire coaching staff in recognition of the team's appreciation. Dr. Sharpe in his talk stressed the fact that next season's schedule, although lacking the color of the present, will be a hard one. Four Valley games are scheduled on successive Saturdays followed by the annual Thanksgiving encounter with the Billikens.

Dr. Sharpe admitted that his hopes for next year are centered upon the Bears winning the football championship of the Valley. He admonished the lettermen to "study hard" so as to again be eligible for the team.

Players who were awarded letters for 1929 follow:

Football—Capt. Harvey Jablonsky, Bob Watson, Emmett Senn, Paul Paris, Charlie Glaser, Gus Zorn, Glen Anderson, Clifford Worcester, Bobbi Sticks, Bert Springer, Bert Friedman, George Coover, John Rennert, Clarence Ax, Dick Hawdon, Leslie Waid, Ted Spangler, Scott Morley, Manager Elwood Hammer, Manager Elwood Hammer, Fred Bush.

Track—Capt. Carl Bickel, Charles Glaser, William Ogle, Bob Poco, Bert Kelly, Paul Paris, Bill Tamburak, Carl Weber, John Gilmore, Thies Leibowitz, Milton Freund, Paul Miller, Edwin Lopata, Manager Fred Reynolds.

Baseball—Capt. Bill Beckmann, Russell Christianson, Ed Meyer, Clark Smith, Wick Rawdon, Art Rothman, George Coover, Scott Hornsby, Bert Friedman, Harvey Jablonsky, Bill Leyhe, Manager Carl Manshardt.

Tennis—Capt. James Murphy, Joyce Portnoy, Vernon Tietjen, Harold Wies.

Fencing—Capt. Conway Briscoe, Bob Muzrau, Ed Muzrau.

RED CAPS VICTORS IN OPENING MATCH OF ROLLER HOCKEY SEASON

With the Flyers, the members of St. Louis' ice hockey team, looking on, the Red Caps, 1928-29 champions of the Palladium League, defeated the Marquards, 1 to 0, in a roller hockey league game at the Palladium rink last night. Holloman scored the only goal.

The game exceeded in roughness than any game played at the Palladium rink and just before its close Robert Van Doren, the Marquards' left wing, was carried from the ring unconscious, the result of being hurled to the floor in a collision with a Red Cap player. He was later taken to the Missouri Baptist Hospital, where he was revived. It was said his condition was not serious.

The third game of the season will be played Wednesday night when the Gladiators meet the Red Caps.

Bears' New Football Leader

GEORGE COOVER.

"The Great" Shires, Conceding 40 Pounds, Given Bad Beating By Professional Football Star

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 17.—Napoleon met his Wellington. Arthur "The Great" Shires has met his "Big Bear." Flushed and self-admittedly great because of his unofficial one-round victories over his erstwhile White Sox manager, Russell Blackburne, and his 21-second knockout over Dangerous Dan Daly of Cleveland in his professional ring debut a week ago, "The Great" Shires tacked George Tratton, the "Big Bear" of professional football last night and got the beating of his life.

Before a howling throng of 5000 spectators, who packed the White City Arena to its cracking rafters, Tratton met and decisively—outraged the loquacious, punch-slugging White Sox first baseman. Packing thunderous blows behind his 220 pounds, he bashed Shires to the floor three times and won the decision by a wide margin after five rounds of toe-to-toe mauling.

It was the first setback for the "great one," but it didn't finish him. As a physician attended his split lip and damaged chin, he announced with no little hauteur he was ready and willing to carry through his contract. Nor did he feel disgraced. By his defeat. He half admitted Tratton's superiority but pointed out that he was outweighed by 40 pounds.

Shires fought a courageous fight but Tratton's great weight and superior boxing ability were too much for him. Only at the start of the battle did he look like the "great one" who sent Daly to sleep, three times in the first round. Tratton's ringing left hooks sent the Texan to the canvas, while many times Lili Arthur was sent reeling backwards by straight rights to his head.

Tratton was in a jovial mood. "I'll fight anybody for another $1000," he chuckled. "That's an easy game. How long has this been going on?"

Offered Rest With Loss.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 17.—Promoter Gab Kaufman today offered Art Shires, Chicago White Sox first baseman $5000 for a bout here with Nick Lube, formerly of Notre Dame. Lube has been performing as a wrestler but has announced his intention of changing to boxing.

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 17.—Promoter Gab Kaufman today offered Art Shires, Chicago White Sox first baseman $5000 for a bout here with Nick Lube, formerly of Notre Dame. Lube has been performing as a wrestler but has announced his intention of changing to boxing.

Shires fought a courageous fight but Tratton's great weight and superior boxing ability were too much for him. Only at the start of the battle did he look like the "great one" who sent Daly to sleep, three times in the first round. Tratton's ringing left hooks sent the Texan to the canvas, while many times Lili Arthur was sent reeling backwards by straight rights to his head.

Tratton was in a jovial mood.

AL BROWN TOPS BANTAMWEIGHT LIST IN BOXING WRITERS' CONSENSUS

BUSHY GRAHAM CLOSE SECOND; FIVE OF TEN FIGHTERS RANKED WERE IN SAME GROUP IN 1928

THIS is the second of a series of 10 articles giving the ranking of boxers in the various weight divisions, as determined by a list of 75 boxing writers in many parts of the country. Each ballot bore votes for 10 fighters in each division, with first place on the list counting for 10 points, second place 9 points, etc., and the highest possible total for any winner being 760 points.

By Wilbur Wood,
Of the New York Sun Sport Staff.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—The composition of the first ten bantamweights in the world, as computed in the fourth annual national boxing consensus, in which 75 leading boxing critics have collaborated, is greatly altered from the lineup at the close of 1928.

Panama Al Brown heads the procession this year, with the fine total of 720 points out of a possible 760 for a percentage of .960. Bushy Graham, Utica, Italian, finishes as good second, with a mark of .817.

There is a considerable margin between second and third places. Kid Francis, the busy little Italian champion, is given the No. 3 rating with a percentage of .587. Not far behind him is Newsboy Brown of Sioux City, appearing as a bantam for the first time, with a percentage of .585. Joe Scalaro, bald-headed Italian apothecary, brings up the rear of the top division.

In the next division we find Andy Martin of Boston, Vidal Gregorio of Spain, Emil Paluso of Salt Lake City, Archie Bell of Brooklyn and Bias Rodriguez of Mexico, in the order named.

The bantamweight division is one of those unblighted by a universally recognized champion. However, the 118-pound class differs from the officially headless flyweight division in that Al Brown is so highly regarded the country over that he may be accepted as the rightful holder of the crown without further ado.

Accepted as Champion.

As Boxing Commissioner William Muldoon so often has said, when queried as to the position of the New York Boxing Board as to recognized champions in divisions where nobody has taken the crown in actual combat with a former champion, no commission has the right to proclaim a new titleholder until one is selected by popular opinion, as exemplified through the press, the voice of the people. Accepting Commissioner Muldoon's viewpoint, there would appear to be no reason to withhold the official honors from the

Brown and Graham Between Them

Get 69 of 75 Votes for First Place

Graham, strongly entrenched in second place, was named as No. 1 by 12 critics, while 44 put him in second position. None ranked him lower than seventh. Brown and Graham, between them, accounted for 59 of the 75 first places. The other six nominations for No. 1 ranking were as follows: Andy Martin, 2; Newsboy Brown, 2; Kid Francis, 1; Frankie Anselm, 1; Anselm, though so highly regarded by one critic, was so little known to the main body of selectors that he failed to break into the first 10.

Francis, who finished as No. 2, received one first, four seconds, 20 thirds and 17 fourth place ballots with a scattering for the other positions all the way down to tenth. The showing of Newsboy Brown, who, during the year, outgrew the flyweight division, was somewhat of a surprise. He was named for a place in the first 10 by almost all the critics.

The most consistent member of the bantamweight brigade is Graham. In 1926, 1927 and 1928 he was ranked third, and this year he again holds that position. His pre-eminence in about the same position is remarkable in view of the fact that changes in the bantamweight personnel always have been more marked than in other classes.

Five members of the charmed circle this year are holdovers from the 1928 ratings. Al Brown shows an advance from fourth to first, Graham moves from third to second, Francis from fifth to third, and Scalaro from tenth to fifth. Bell, the only one of the holdovers to lose ground, falls from sixth to ninth.

The new members of the bantamweight "elite" are Newsboy Brown, Andy Martin, Vidal Gregorio, Emil Paluso and Bias Rodriguez. The latter, a high-fisted Mexican, is like Newsboy Brown, a graduate of the flyweight ranks.

Martin and Paluso are seasoned warriors, but Gregorio, the aggressive little Spaniard, is a compara-

PERMITS GRANTED TO LAY
PIPES FOR NATURAL GAS

Board of Public Service Authorizes Four Mains, After Its Authority to Act Is Passed On.

The Board of Public Service today issued a permit to the Missouri Industrial Gas Co. to lay four gas mains through which it will distribute natural gas piped to St. Louis from Monroe, La., by the Mississippi River Fuel Corporation. The permit was issued after the board received an opinion from City Councilor Muench that it had authority to issue such a permit.

One of the mains will start near the Tower Grove stations of the Missouri Pacific and Frisco Railroads and continue east along the railroad right-of-way to Wharf street. From Gratiot and Wharf streets one main will go south to Second and President streets and another north, along Wharf, Bidwell, Second and North, and the streets the Wabash right-of-way, Palm street and the Terminal right-of-way to the northern city limits. The fourth main will extend along Jefferson avenue to the northwestern industrial district.

The Missouri Industrial Gas Co. is a subsidiary of the Utilities Power and Light Corporation, which owns the Laclede Gas Light Co., distributor of manufactured gas.

INQUIRY IN DEATH OF WOMAN
WITNESS IN DOT KING KILLING

Relatives Make Affidavits Mrs. Anna F. Dreyfus Feared She

Would Be Slain.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Copies of affidavits made by relatives of Mrs. Anna F. Dreyfus, the woman who was slain and whose body was found in the basement of the home of her son, Dot King, have been sent to New York authorities by District Attorney Ror.

The District Attorney is investigating the death of Mrs. Dreyfus, who was fatally injured in a fall from a balcony. With her at the time was Edmund J. Murphy, his son, and a nephew of the victim. Mrs. Dreyfus was understood to have told police that Albert E. Guimaraes, Porto Rican, had in connection with the King murder, was with her and McBrien the night of the crime.

McBrien was questioned about the death of Mrs. Dreyfus but was released after a Coroner's jury decided she accidentally fell from the balcony.

Some of her relatives think she was slain and their representations have led to a reopening of the investigation.

STEAMER ADRIFT AT SEA
FOR WEEKS TOWED TO PORT

The Jamaica Settler, with 22 passengers aboard, Caught Without Rudder in Storm.

By the Associated Press.

PALMOUTH, England, Dec. 17.—After drifting helplessly at sea for many days, the steamer Jamaica Settler, with 22 passengers aboard, was towed safely into port by three tugs today. The ship, a British vessel of 4661 tons, left London Nov. 19 for Kingston, Jamaica, and had been nearly a month at sea.

The ship's rudder was damaged by stormy weather and it was left helpless in the ocean far from land. Its S O S calls brought a Dutch tug from Newfoundland, the captain of the Jamaica Settler meanwhile managing to keep the ship's head to the wind.

But the seas grew heavier and when the tug arrived the steamer's position was perilous. No sooner had the passengers gone ashore than they snapped, and the tug had carried many miles ahead by heavy seas.

Last Saturday the hurricane tossed the rudderless steamer about like a cork and further damaged it. A second tug came to help the first, but the two could make little headway until a third arrived. The passengers included several women and children.

PUBLIC SERVICE BOARD OK'S
BUYING SITE FOR NURSES' HOME

Eight Pieces of Property at Gratiot and Carroll to Cost $74,850.

Purchase of eight pieces of property at the northwest corner of Gratiot and Carroll streets for $74,850 as a site for a nurses' home for the adjacent City Hospital was tentatively approved by the Board of Public Service today. The proposal will be considered next by the Citizens' Bond Issue Supervisory Committee.

The property fronts 250 feet on Gratiot street and 195 feet on Carroll street diagonally across from the northwest corner of the hospital. Director of Public Welfare Salisbury said a $500,000 building is tentatively planned, to be paid for from bond issue funds, although the design and size have not yet been determined.

200 RESCUED IN SHIPWRECK
Passengers and Crew Saved, Cargo Lost, Off New Zealand.

By the Associated Press.

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Dec. 17.—Two hundred passengers and crew—were landed safely when the steamer Manuka, 4534 tons, was wrecked today at Long Point, between Bluff and Dunedin.

The cargo, including a collection of British pictures valued at $15,000 (about $120,000) apparently was lost.

Former French Minister Dieu, NICE, France, Dec. 17.—Baron Flaminio Ralberti, Minister of War in 1920 and Minister of Marine in 1922, died today. He served 10 years in Parliament.

NERESS, 16, IN STAR'S ROLE

ON SHORT NOTICE SCORES HIT
Margaret Perry, Co-Producer's
Daughter, Plays in When Muriel Kirkland Is Taken Ill.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
MARGARET Perry, 16 years old, with no Broadway stage experience, walked into the exacting part of Isabel Perry in "Strictly Dishonorable" at the Avon Theater last night and carried off the honors of the performance. Muriel Kirkland, who played the role for 104 performances, was ill. She had managed to struggle through Saturday night, but it was apparent then that she would not be able to appear last night.

Antoinette Perry and Brock Pemberton, producing the play, made hasty calculations. There was no one to take the part. Oh, yes, there was Antoinette Perry's daughter. A rehearsal was called.

After the rehearsal Sunday afternoon, Margaret was adjudged competent. So the play went on.

The new star's mother is a granddaughter of former Senator Charles M. Hall of Colorado and the widow of Frank Frazee, millionaire, who fell dead at the height of his career.

THE WAY
A WOMAN

By Marguerite M. Marshall

THE AVERAGE WOMAN.

HERE is no such thing as every woman alive is an individual and not a common man, but the much-quoted phrase expresses a condition generally understood: the sum of smallnesses and samenesses that still make up the days of most women living and working at home. The women are the great majority, despite the minority of adventure and excitement. The minority members are the new and so they are the news and get into the newspaper columns, including this one.

But we do try not to forget the others, for whom, every 24 hours there are three meals to plan, to prepare, to serve to clear away! There are the make-up to dust, and the table-tops and all the rounds of all the chores. There are the things to be wiped with damp cloths and the clothes to be washed and dried. There are the picking-up, the setting-right, the polishing-up. Very likely there are the children and all the innumerable petty, monotonous but inevitable services which children require—from straining the cereals to settling the quarrels.

All writing for women should include a not infrequent tribute of understanding and appreciation for "the average woman's life." Here is, first of all, the joy of work for those who have to work. Here is the pride of doing even small things perfectly. She knows the beauty of orderliness, cleanliness, fitness. She savors the self-respect of performing the nearest necessary jobs with courage and perseverance and reliability and humor.

Whether conventionally religious or not, she should realize the essential dignity of her life, as expressed in the old hymn:

"To sweep a room, as by Thy laws,
Is the same inspiring idea which Robert Browning sings in
"Pippa's Blues":
"All that God makes ranks the same with God—
With God, whose puppets, best and worst,
Are we: there is no last nor first."

No simple woman need be blind to this apology pro vita sua—not even a physically blind woman. Of all that is beautiful and moving in Helen Keller's new autobiography, "Midstream," it seems to us that nothing will make a swifter appeal to the great throng of common readers than the discourses that speak like them.

Helen Keller, for nearly all her adult life, has not only done but done gladly the essential, unexciting household tasks. More than we for one, ever guessed, she has led "the average woman's life."

Women who have thought of Helen Keller as a phenomenon, a heroine continually on exhibition, now learn that the most heroic and phenomenal thing about this deaf and blind girl is her deliberate and successful identification of herself with the common lot of womankind. Every day Helen Keller does the small, monotonous, trivial tasks which most women do. Helen Keller does them without weariness or complaint. For even blind Helen sees their significance.

"During many years we had no servant," she writes, in her loving description of the first home-sweat-home Boston where she lived after her graduation from Radcliffe with her teacher, Anne Sullivan Macy, and her teacher's husband. "I learned to do all I could without sight to help my teacher. Mr. Macy went to Boston every morning, and Mrs. Macy drove him to the train and attended to the marketing. I cleared the table, washed the dishes and tidied up the rooms.

"Letters might come in multitudes, articles and books might clamor to be written, but home was home, and somebody had to make the beds, pick the flowers, start the windmill and stop it when the hand was filled, and be helpful to the little blind ones, unnoticed things which constitute the happiness of family life. Of course, I could not take the helm of the ship in hand. But I found tasks sufficient to keep me on my feet most of the day, and every one who loves knows how gratifying it is to be able really to help others through a hard day's routine."

A GAIN, during the last two years while she has been writing her biography at Forest Hills, struggling against tremendous handicaps she also has been helping Mrs. Macy, herself nearly blind to care for their home. They got their own "friends" to help them. "When they do most of the cooking, while Miss Keller washed the dishes, made the beds, did the dusting and on Monday pricked out the laundry. Not in braille so she could check it when the clothes came back on Saturday. When the morning chores were done and the most instant letters answered she turned to 'Midstream.'

NOTHING in her life seems to us more beautiful, more gallant and womanly, than her cheerful performance of "the daily round, the common tasks" of women. To others who, for this task, enjoy a million compensations Helen Keller may not know, she should be an inspiration. "Long ago" she admits simply, "I was determined not to complain. But I was moved in enough to make innumerable wry faces in wonder, submissively, why that should be complainable."

HEARTS HAVEN

The Struggle of The Heart and Conscience
of Christine Farr

CHAPTER 28.

"HARVEY killed last night in an automobile accident. Don't think you had better come under the circumstances. Letter follows. DAD."

Christine read the message three or four times before it was really registered.

Harvey dead! That splendidly vital body still lay dead. It seemed impossible. And what did her father mean by "under the circumstances"? It was unnecessary to tell her not to come. She could not have done so, could not have left her job at the cabaret, even if she had wished.

In the shock of the news that Harvey was dead, she almost forgot the chasm that had separated them. For a moment, she remembered him as he had been when he carried her off on the eve of their elaborate wedding; as the Harvey who had been reverently won her over when her first child lay in her arms.

It was for that Harvey she wept—not for the man who lay silent and still in the big, empty house from which she had fled in shame.

"Any night I am likely to lose what

THE LIFE OF JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER

Got His First Job When He Was Sixteen;
At Nineteen Was in Business for Himself

By JOHN K. WINKLER

CHAPTER II.

"NO HELP WANTED" signs decorated the doors of Cleveland storekeepers and merchants in early September, 1855, when 16-year-old John Rockefeller set out to seek employment for his budding talents. It was a hard year in the West. For days and weeks the youth tramped the streets, grave, self-centered, tormented in his quest.

Physically, he appealed to the eye. He was of good height, with a frame that gave promise of filling into robust manhood, straight gray-blue eyes and thick light hair parted upon the left of a wide brow.

He impressed one as "different," in some indefinable way, from most boys. Without seeming in the least "satisfied," he was "steady" and "good." His voice was low and easy on the ear. It was often raised in prayer and hymn in a small mission church—Eric Street Baptist—with which he had affiliated during his year in Cleveland. Already he was looked upon as an earnest laborer in the Lord's vineyard.

Young Mr. Downie, the minister, spoke of the serious-minded youth affectionately, and John served as clerk, without compensation, to the Board of Trustees. At Central High he had been nicknamed Deacon. The appellation pleased him.

Not for John the rowdy outlets of most bastam cocks of his age: pool shooting, cigarette smoking, bravado beer drinking. Let misguided sinners ogle the girls and indulge in the disgusting close harmony of barber shop ballads. He memorized passages of Scripture and etherialized his nature with "Beulah Land," "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" and other fine old hymns. He could carry a tune, having a natural ear for music. Nights, while roisterers were rolling the bones or bidding up a pair of jacks, John was quietly at work on the church accounts, adding, subtracting, balancing.

The lad, could prospective employer deal with a man than fight players but have realized it was with him.

"I checked up every bill that uniquely equipped for his chosen career. Already he had a fair grasp of the laws and methods of commerce. Judiciously and with our skill had negotiated many small loans from his father. He always saw that good collateral was produced and that his father received the legal limit of 10 per cent interest. The landlady and some fellow lodgers thought John was paying an outrageous rate and told him so. Rockefeller, however, held that money was worth never did it again."

Made Money Count.

In his personal expenditures Rockefeller squandered every cent and saved the cent. He paid out not a penny without cautious deliberation. Reading as books save his ledger, attending no balls, finding his social life inexpensive, in church and Sunday school, he dreamed and schemed day and night with money the one object of those dreams and schemes.

William A. Rockefeller heartily approved of his son's right line. Through him a check-book himself. Old Bill relished to the full the advantages of a plow cloak. The father was still the guiding force in his son's life. In the spring of 1855, Dee Rockefeller came to live with John while looking about for a home. Instinctively he recognized that the city was the place to go home. Instinctively he recognized that the city was the place to go home. So he determined to make one last try at a job.

He canvassed the docks of the bustling Lake Erie port. Everywhere there were picturesque evidences of activity. But shipyards, and companies, all returned laconic negatives to his persistent: "Good morning, sir. Do you want a boy?"

Finally a member of a wholesale forwarding concern replied gruffly: "Dunno, sonny. Come back after I have had my dinner and you may get a chance."

INNER was the noon meal. The young job seeker was again in the warehouse office at 12:45. Half an hour later he was hired as strand boy, sub-clerk and general handy man. Salary was not mentioned.

The name of the firm was Hewitt & Tuttle. The date, since observed with tender reverence in the Rockefeller household, was Sept. 26, 1855. Messrs. Hewitt and Tuttle were placid men. But their pulses might have been stimulated somewhat if they could have foreseen that their new office boy would, 45 years later, have an income of about a million a week.

Best Years.

Looking rearward, John D. estimates as the most vital of his life the two and a half years passed in the Hewitt & Tuttle warehouse on the Cleveland docks. He learned everything and forgot nothing—business management and finance systematic maintenance of office records, handling of customers.

Hewitt and Tuttle soon perceived that they had stumbled upon a treasure. However, these canny business men were sufficiently versed in the wiles of trade not to tell him so. On Sept. 26, 1855, Tuttle merely handed the quick, active youth $50 for his 14 weeks' work and informed him that his duties were to be enlarged. He was to become assistant bookkeeper at $25 a month.

Some time later the $200-a-year bookkeeper resigned and Rockefeller was given the place—but not the salary. Now the 18-year-old boy had a position of authority and responsibility. And now he first learned the value of negotiation. He was not a "mixer," yet he got what he went after. He developed surprising ability to soothe complaints and to win what he wanted by soft methods. Doubtless he had never heard of Cecil Rhodes, but the Empire Builder's ruling Maxim also became his: "It is best to be kind to the poor."

John was working in Cleveland, but came home frequently. He and Melinda often "walked out" together. Early marriage was the fashion then, and many heads nodded over the possibility of a match. The rumors reached the

When Young John D. Looked for Work

John D. Rockefeller canvassed the docks for a job. But jobs were scarce. Finally one busy employer turned to him, "Come back after I have had my dinner and you may have a chance."

Just "Testing."

John D. possessed, he admits almost $1000. He went to his father for advice. Crafty. Dee Rockefeller talked with Clark, and advanced his son the $1000 he had intended giving him on his twenty-first birthday.

Clark had enlisted another partner in George W. Gardner, a full-blooded, jovial young man, son of an honorable and ancient family.

John D. has always puzled and fascinated women. The ladies like the aura of power. Most women possess an enviable ability to idealize men of accomplishment. Witness the conquests of bald Caesar, the diminutive Napoleon. John D., one feels could have been equally successful if the terrible strain of his acquisitive years had afforded time for indulgence in the lighter, aromatic engagements of life—not that one could ever imagine him strumming a guitar under the easement of a lady fair.

Trustee at Eighteen.

At 18 John was not only a valued employee of Hewitt & Tuttle, but he had established a credit outside his business circle. He won his trusteeship in the mission church as a reward for saving it.

The tiny edifice was threatened with disaster because of the imminent foreclosure of a $2000 mortgage. The creditor was a deacon of the church but his heart was not in the game.

"How much do you require?" asked Mr. Handy.

"Two thousand dollars."

"All right, Mr. Rockefeller, you can have it. Just give me your own warehouse receipts: they're good enough."

John D. left the bank walking on air. "Just think of it," he mused, "a bank had trusted me for $2000. I felt that I was now a man of importance in the community."

Everyone was in a panic—every one save practical-minded young John Rockefeller. He stationed himself at the door, and the brothers and sisters filed out, asking each how much he and she had saved and could contribute toward paying the debt. He held a small account book and his pencil was poised. There was something in his manner that meant business. Not a member escaped without pledging a definite amount, from a few cents to a dollar a week. The $2000 was on hand within a few months.

"That was my first experience as a beggar," says John D. "I was proud of my success."

It may well be imagined how valuable a bookkeeper Rockefeller had made himself to Hewitt and Tuttle by this time. Jan. 1, 1856, he transferred him to a salary of $700. He held on for $800. The parties were still wrangling over the extra $100 in March, 1856. The parties were still wrangling over the extra $100 in March, 1856. He would have paid Hewitt and Tuttle $700, yet he came to him with many times the amount in dispute. For opportunity came to John D. to go into the commission business on his own and he seized it. Hewitt and Tuttle paid dear. The meek-mannered bookkeeper became a rival and a dangerous one.

His First Partner.

The offer came from Maurice H.

Clark, a young bookkeeper. He was anxious to establish a business.

methods did not appear as humorous as now.

John D. watched the business like a mother hen guarding her eggs at hatching time. He was always first to arrive, last to leave. He sat on a high stool before a tall, old-fashioned desk and never complained. His chair jarred his arm and caused him to splutter ink. He and Clark were inseparable in accord, but Gardner was rather an alien element in the firm.

Gardner, later commander of the Cleveland Yacht Club, had a run in with Rockefeller one day over the question of spending money for fun. He and three friends had purchased a second-hand yacht for $2000. One Saturday afternoon they were about to sail over to Put-in-Bay for an outing, leaving the office. Gardner noticed Rockefeller bending over his books with special gravity that was becoming habitual and tame.

"John, we're going for a sail. Come along," invited Gardner.

"Get your mind off business for a while."

The junior partner looked up with cold, clinical eyes and graced.

"George Gardner, you are the most extravagant young man I ever knew. You are just barely getting a start in life, and yet you own an interest in a yacht. You are inuring your credit at the banks—your credit and mine. Everybody will be looking on you as a spendthrift and the first thing you know you'll be wrecking our business. No, I won't go on your yacht—I don't ever want to see it."

The venomous outburst surprised Gardner. But he remarked quietly:

"All right, John. I see there are certain things on which you and I probably never will agree.

I think you like money beyond all else in the world, and I don't prefer to have a little fun along with business."

Years later, when he was Mayor of Cleveland, Commissioner Gardner of his associate Illinois Rockefellers' crew, for instance, Clark, Gardner & Co., had invested his entire fortune, some $45,000, in grain for shipment to Buffalo, at that time the grain market for the Great Lakes.

Inasmuch as the weather was not threatening, Rockefeller suggested they take a chance, ship without insurance and save $150.

Clark and Gardner reluctantly agreed.

The vessel embarked with cargo unguaranteed.

That night a vicious storm raged over Lake Erie. When Gardner got to the office next morning, John D. was sitting the floor, pale. "Let's take out insurance right away," he answered, "we'll still have time—the boat hasn't been wrecked by now."

Gardner went upstairs and paid

Behind Screens

The Latest News and Gossip of the Film Actors in Hollywood Appears in the Daily Magazine of the Post-Dispatch Every Tuesday day and Thursday and in the Sunday Drama Section.

A NEW form of literature and or are being evolved by the talking motion picture. The new literature is the "dialogue script," a hybrid of the silent screen scenario and the stage play.

The new dramatic writer is one who combines the "camera mind" and the dialogue techniques of the theatrical playwright.

These are the observations of Jesse L. Lasky,
in charge of production for Paramount.

Lasky states that the invention of the talking picture has opened the eyes of the film industry to absolutely new vistas of achievement and progress in their medium and that tremendous strides will be made in the mechanical development of the motion picture during the next decade.

"But" he further asserts, "the story is 'the thing,' after all, and the creative end of the industry must match the mechanical end strife for strife."

The Paramount executive declares that few persons, even those literary minded, realize that the talking picture is produced from an absolutely new form of literature.

In style, the dialogue script resembles the theatrical play, he says, but it must be more than a clever plot, cleverly dialogued and laid against a limited number of settings, which fulfills the requirements of the stage play.

"Rather," he says, "the dialogue script must utilize the illimitable scope of the camera lens and contain all the realism of action that only the wedding of camera and microphone can produce."

During the first year of the perfected all-talking picture, many of the successful dialogue scripts have been written by collaborators."

For instance, Lasky points out, George Baum's picture, "The Mighty," and Ned Carroll's first starring vehicle, "Dangerous Paradise," were written in collaboration by Grover Jones and William Slavens McNutt.

"Jones for 16 years has written scenarios," says the executive. "He knows every possible set-up for a camera, what it can and cannot reproduce. He is camera-minded.
McNutt is comparatively new to Hollywood, but he is a master literary craftsman. For 18 years he has been writing for the largest magazines in the nation. He is noted for his clever dialogue."

"The two are fine complements of one another. Their scripts contain every element of the new talking picture technique."

"But collaboration is only a temporary expedient. Motion picture dramatists who will be able to conjure a plot, write the dialogue for it, and be camera-minded enough to utilize the full scope of the medium at their disposal, will be developed in Hollywood. There are a number of writers who already have reached this stage, and the really great motion picture dramatists,
the Ibsens, the Galwyrths, the Shaws, the Conrads of this new field of literary expression soon will emerge."

No one has successfully taken the place of Charles Ray occupied for so long in the movies, which he gave up when he failed as an independent producer, but a young fellow coming to the front now is a likely candidate.

It is easy to imagine William Janney in the battered straw hat and overalls that made Charles Ray, that likely candidate.

The first time
Janney ever appeared before a movie camera was
as Mary Pickford's brother in "Co-quette" and since he has been George O'Brien's brother in "Salute." In less than a year he has been in four pictures, always as somebody's brother.

Janney, son of a New York theatrical producer, has been on the stage six years. A year ago he came here with a play. Film offers followed and he stayed.

Imitations usually are unsuccessful and done seriously, often are frowned upon. Janney, however, was not conscious that he looked like Ray until it was mentioned. It is only a coincidence that his performances have that unaffected earnestness that made Charles Ray such a favorite.

A GENIUS of some kind is to solve a talkie problem is being awaited. He would be required to invent a device to measure the length of time audiences will laugh at funny lines and situations. It is impossible to halt a picture while auditors laugh and very often the action goes right on while a humorous line is still being cracked over.

In many pictures "laughing spot" action is inserted so that none of the ensuing dialog will be lost. Many directors believe that nothing is more important to the success of their pictures than a good, hearty laugh, even at the expense of words that may be associated to the plot.

LILA LEE has been grown-up and wise for many years, but until lately those who knew her only through the pictures never would suspect it.

When she recently returned to the screen, she became her sophisticated self.

Lila was the
"sweet little girl"
of the movies for many years, playing opposite stars
like Wallace
Reid and Valentino. That was before her marriage.

When James Kirkwood and the heroine of some of his screen adventures
were married, Miss Lee retired.

The marriage "wore off in a couple of years, as marriages will," says Lila, and she came back to Hollywood. Incidentally, their son, now 4 years old, is with his father.

Miss Lee was here a year before she was given any kind of a role.
Her name, she said, had been forgotten. She was instant and in the last year she has become a new Lila with new success.

Miss Lee, when very, very young,
was on the stage, and she began her movie career when she was 13. So she has grown up with the movies.

"I like being grown-up," says Lila. "It seems to fit my personality better. No one can keep on being a 'sweet and innocent' forever.
The flip modiste in 'Dragnet' for example, something new for me and other roles since my so-called comeback have been nearly as sophisticated."

OUR year, ago Llewellyn
Hughes was starving in a New York garret while attempting to impress editors with his stories.
He earned occasional meals by working as an extra at the Fox studios in New York. Hughes had a dress suit and he was able to get on most of the "dress" sets at the studio. He was paid $5 a day when he worked.

Four years later at the same address, Hughes collected a check for $5000 for his story,
"A Chap Called Bardella."

The story, from which Fox has made "The Sky Hawk," was turned over by one magazine because it contained too much love interest.
Had he eliminated that portion of it, he could have sold it for $240.
Instead he sent it to another which paid $1000.

EIGHTEEN years ago in a saloon in Alaska, Jack Holt saw a moving picture. It was the first he had ever seen and he recalls now that his only impression of the show is that the operator had changed reels everyone had a drink.

But Holt, adventurer and prospector then,
was destined to be one of the central figures throughout their development
from one-real serials to super specials in 10
reels with dialog and color.

St. Louis
SIXTEEN years ago Holt came to the city because of prospecting didn't pay well. He once had been a cowboy, so with what money he had he bought a herd of cattle.
Lack of rain caused him to lose most of the herd and he was broke.

Fifteen years ago Holt applied at a studio for work and got it. His first appearance on the screen was as a double for House Peters, who in 1914 was beginning a long movie career.

HOLT was hired to ride a horse into a tank and into a river.
He broke two ribs in the fall and after he had been treated he was told that he had fallen too fast for the camera to record it, and that he would have to do it again.

The inducement to do the stunt over was another $25. Such easy money should not be passed up, thought Holt, and he determined to stay in Hollywood and earn more of it.

Before the year was up, Holt was a full-fledged actor. He was the star of "Liberty," the first serial Universal made. From serial Holt went to features and specials. He was one of the first all-color full-length pictures, "The Wandering of the Wasteland," in 1924, a forerunner of the present and perfected all-color pictures.

Two years ago Holt made his last western, and since he has been appearing in other types of pictures,
among them "Flight."

There are many who have attained loftier film positions than Holt's, but few have a record of 15 years in the foreground.

Suede Ensemble
The final ensemble note in the afternoon costume may well be the bag and slippers of similar material, color and design. Suede, in black or brown is successfully employed in the dreamy envelope bag and single strap high-heeled slippers. A clever idea shows a strap slipped through a metal circuit simulating a bow, used on both the bag and shoes.

WALL STREET
STOCK PRICE MOVEMENTS ARE ERRATIC; TRADE SLOW

late Demand Appears for U. S. Steel, General Electric and American Telephone Shares.

NO CHANGE MADE IN BOSTON RATE

Announcement of Large Middle Western Steel Merger Is One of Important Developments of Day

Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—The stock market had its ups and downs again today, with final quotations generally lower. Public participation was on a small scale, which is attributed to the uncertainty regarding the immediate course of business and the natural disinclination of small operators to trade in a dull market. The best prices of the day, as a rule, were registered in the last hour, although a flurry of selling just before the close cut down or wiped out many gains.

Some disappointment was apparent in the further falling off in light car traffic, and the appointment of a receiver for the American Piano Co.

Steel Industry Situation.
Iron Age stated that "the anomalous situation of production sinking and confidence rising characterizes the steel market as year-end approaches," explaining further that producers are satisfied that the sharp decline in steel output that began in October is a psychological effect of the stock market crash and greatly exceeded the actual contradiction of steel consumption."

The announcement of the formation of a large Middle Western steel merger, which has been under way for a long time, was one of the most important and interesting developments in the day's news.

All money was in fairly plenty of supply, with the demand light, the official rate maintained at 4 per cent. There was no change in time money, which was quoted at 4 1/4 to 5 per cent for all maturities. The Boston Federal Reserve Bank made no change in 4 1/4 per cent rediscount rate.

Steel Closes Unchanged.

U. S. Steel common closed unchanged at 171 1/4 after fluctuating between 169 3/4 and 173 1/4. Republic Steel showed a net loss of 5 cents and Bethlehem fell back

General Electric was only able to gain 2 points in an extreme gain.

Brooklyn Union Gas gained 9 1/4 points higher. Detroit Edison, American Mining and Bell Telephone showed net declines of 3 to 5 1/4 points.

Heavy selling of the International Combustion issues featured late trading, the preferred yielding 5 1/4 points while the common yielded only fractionally.

Auto, Allied Chemical, Otis, Fox Film, National Biscuit, General Railway Signal, Canada, Pan American and Pan American showed net declines of 3 to 5 1/4 points.

The steadily increasing volume of new bond offerings, coupled with large amounts of new paper, including a large German issue, is believed to have resulted in a diversion of investment funds from the stock to the bond market.

Exchange Irregular.

Foreign exchanges moved within narrow and irregular limits, sterling cables held fairly steady around 44 1/4, but most of the other European rates were slightly lower. Latin-American currencies were a shade firmer.

Commodity markets were mixed. Cotton advanced about 50 cents a bushel. The corn market was up with prices showing little change.

Based on the action of the market in the interval which the report will cover, tomorrow's week statement of the Federal Reserve brokers' borrowings is expected to show some measure of expansion of last week's expansion of $22,000.

Stock prices, with other financial and market news, will be found on Pages 18C, 19C, 18D and 19D.
